Famous Eaton Family Well Known in America Since Mayflower Days

By MRS. HARVIE JORDAN.

The famous Eaton family has been interestingly known in America from the time of Francis Eaton, who came over on the Mayflower, to Cyrus Eaton, who came from Pugwash. It is not known whether William Eaton, the subject of this sketch, was related to either of these famous Eatons.

That William's record is a notable one is proved by the fact that through its eligibility to membership in the Colonial Dames and the Daughters of the American Colonists has been established.

William was the first Eaton to settle in North Carolina, coming from Prince George County, Virginia, in 1725, with his Virginia wife, Mary Rives Eaton.

He located in Edgecombe County, where he became an extensive landowner. Granville was formed from Edgecombe County in 1746, and until his death in 1759 William Eaton was prominent in Granville County affairs.

He was named Justice of County Court in 1746 and held this position until his death. He was High Sheriff two years, and held the office of Public Register from 1748 to 1759. He qualified as first colonel of the Regiment of Granville County Militia. He was one of the first Representatives from Granville County in the General Assembly that met at Wilmington in 1746, and he served for several years.

His home, "The Manour Plantation," was probably the handsomest in all that section. Near the then county town and on one of the main-traveled highways, his hospitality was well known and often shared. The extent of his estate was what might be termed for that period princely.

There has been published recently a valuable book, "Reliques of the Rives," by James Rives Childs, which gives the history of the "Ancient Family of Ryves of Dorset County, England, and

Rives in Virginia, is listed in Surry County in 1684.

George Rives, Mary's father, lived in Prince George County. The name of his wife is not recorded. There were three children — William, Thomas and Mary, who married William Eaton.

*Youngest Child Married

Col. William Eaton's will, dated 1759, mentions, besides his wife, the following children: (1) Jane Eaton, who married (a) Anthony Haynes, son of Thomas and Martha Jones Haynes; (b) Col. Nathaniel Edwards. (2) Anne Eaton, who married (a) Andrew Haynes, brother of Anthony; (b) the Rev. John Pugh. (3) Mary Eaton, who married Robert Jones. They had one daughter, Elizabeth, who married Gov. Benjamin Williams. (4) Sarah Eaton, who married (a) John Thornton, by whom she had three children: Francis, Mary and Anne; (b) Charles Johnson. (5) Elizabeth Eaton, who married Daniel Weldon. (6) William Eaton, Captain in the Revolutionary War. (7) Thomas Eaton, who married (a) Anna Bland, of Virginia; (b) Elizabeth, daughter of General Allen Jones; (c) Anna Stith. Thomas Eaton became a general. (8) Charles Rust Eaton married Elizabeth Jeffreys. (9) Martha Eaton, the youngest child, married William Person after 1759.

Among the associates of Col. William Eaton as justices in 1746 were Edward Jones, Gideon Macon, Samuel

Thomas Lowe*

His wife, Mary Rives Eaton, survived him and later married Thomas Lowe.

There has been published recently a valuable book, "Reliques of the Rives," by James Rives Childs, which gives the history of the "Ancient Family of Ryves of Dorset County, England, and the Rives of Virginia."

The wife of Col. William Eaton sprung from this ancient and distinguished family. Mary was the daughter of George Rives, who was the eldest son of the emigrant, William Rives. William, the founder of the family of

Rives in Virginia, is listed in Surry County in 1684.

George Rives, Mary's father, lived in Prince George County. The name of his wife is not recorded. There were three children — William, Thomas and Mary, who married William Eaton.
